If you are playing 3G or Next G video and audio content and you move out of a 3G or Next G coverage area, you will need to return to a 3G or Next G coverage area to start playing the video or audio content again.
- 2.3 Enhanced 4G content such as video and audio is only available while you are in a 4G coverage area. Content in non-4G areas (eg 3G or Next G) but will typically be accessed at slower speeds than if you are in a 4G coverage area.

Part H – BigPond Mobile Services (previously known as Telstra Active or WAP)

you before you download the Blackberry Application.

2.6 When you agree to purchase BigPond Mobile Services content, you will be charged:

If we decrease your default spend limit, we will tell you before the change takes effect in accordance with the General Terms of the Telstra Mobile section of Our Customer Terms. To see these terms – home and family customers click here; business and government customers click here.

14 Whereis Everyone

- 14.1 Whereis Everyone allows you to find your own approximate location and the approximate location of other Telstra Mobile customers in Australia. You can also locate points of interest at or near your location.
- 14.2 Note that whilst we refer to locating a person, you are actually locating their mobile phone, and their mobile phone may not be with them.
- 14.3 Whereis Everyone may be used through your Telstra mobile, or via the Whereis Everyone website. However you choose to use it, charges will be billed to the Telstra mobile account you used to register for the service.

Registering and Inviting friends

- 14.4 Before you can locate anyone, you must first register to the service. You can register for Whereis Everyone via Whereis Everyone on your handset, or via the Whereis Everyone website. In order to register, you must have your mobile phone with you, and be able to receive SMS messages (i.e. switched on, and in a Telstra mobile coverage area). This applies to registration using your handset or the Whereis Everyone website.
- 14.5 Once registered for Whereis Everyone, you can invite people to share their approximate location with you. If and when people accept your invitation they will be added to your list of people, and you can attempt to locate them.
- 14.6 You can also reply via SMS to other people's invitations, to share your approximate location with them. You do not need to be registered for Whereis Everyone to accept such invitations; however you will not be able to see your friend's approximate locations unless you register.

- 14.7 You can only use Whereis Everyone to locate friends who are also Telstra Mobile customers.

Availability

- 14.8 Whereis Everyone is available to all Telstra Mobile Customers regardless of what type of mobile phone they have.
- 14.9 In order to use the service via your mobile phone you must have a phone with Wireless Application Protocol (WAP) capability.
- 14.10 In order to use the service via a computer, you must have a computer with internet access and web browser. The web browser must be Internet Explorer 6.0 or greater, Firefox 2.0 or greater, or Safari 3.0 or greater.

Accuracy

- 14.11 There are two ways that Whereis Everyone is able to find the approximate location of a person. By default, their approximate location is found by the “Cell-ID” method. This method uses information from one or more base stations that are in range of the person’s handset. Using this method, the location is usually established within a few seconds. The accuracy depends upon many factors including the number of base stations in the area, the distance between these base stations, and the number of objects that can interfere with and/or reflect signals, such as trees, automobiles and buildings. In high density areas, such as the centre of cities, accuracy can be to within a few hundred metres of the actual position. In rural areas outside population centres the accuracy can be to within several kilometres of the actual position.
- 14.12 The second method is AGPS (Assisted Global Positioning System). You can only use AGPS to find the approximate location of a person if you have a post-paid account, and if the person you are attempting to locate has a handset with the AGPS feature built-in.
- 14.13 When using the AGPS method, the location of a person can often be found to within approximately 50m of the actual position, but this can vary between around 20m to up to 200-300m. Finding the approximate location of a person using AGPS often takes around 30 seconds, but can be up to a minute or even longer. AGPS uses satellites to triangulate the position of a handset and it often does not work in-doors.
- 14.14 If you know that a person has an AGPS handset then you can tell Whereis Everyone to try locating them using AGPS. You do this by going to the Details of that person and clicking on “Attempt to find this person using AGPS”. Note that for privacy reasons, in addition to being able to choose whether or not to be located at all, people with AGPS handsets are able to choose whether or not they allow people to locate them using AGPS (this is done through “My Account - Visibility”).

- 14.15 When attempting to locate someone using AGPS, Whereis Everyone will also attempt to find that person using Cell-ID. Because Cell-ID is faster, you will usually get an approximate location within a few seconds, which may be refined a little time later if and when an AGPS location is successful.
- 14.16 Whichever method is used, Whereis Everyone will give an estimation of the accuracy of the location. When given in words this will be in the form of plus or minus a certain number of metres. On the website, it will be shown on the map as a shaded area. This is only an approximation, indicating that more likely than not, the person is within this area. However, there will be occasional cases where the person is outside this area.
- 14.17 Because of the technical limitations outlined above, Telstra cannot guarantee the accuracy or completeness of location information.

Privacy and security

- 14.18 We provide you with full control over if and how much information on your location you make available to others. Your privacy is protected in accordance with our Privacy Statement. Our Privacy Statement is available at http://www.telstra.com.au/privacy/privacy_statement.html.
- 14.19 You can block particular people from obtaining your location using the Whereis Everyone on your mobile, the Whereis Everyone website, or via My Account>Location Preferences on the BigPond Mobile Services portal on your handset. You can also make yourself invisible to all people (this overrides blocking of certain people).
- 14.20 The blocking and invisibility feature is mutual. You can locate a person if you have chosen to be locatable by them, and they have chosen to be locatable by you. Similarly, you cannot locate a person if you have chosen to be unlocatable by them, or they have chosen to be unlocatable by you.
- 14.21 In addition to being able to choose whether or not to be located at all, people with AGPS handsets are able to choose whether or not they allow people to locate them using AGPS (this is done through “My Account - Visibility”).

Part H – BigPond Mobile Services (previously known as Telstra Active or WAP)

- 14.22 We will send you an SMS at regular intervals to remind you that you have registered for Whereis Everyone. This SMS may also contain additional information about your service, including existing features, new features, promotions, etc. We will not charge you for these reminder SMS. This SMS will also contain a wireless application protocol address (wap.WhereisEveryone.com.au) which you can visit at any time to check who your designated friends are.
- 14.23 Your e-mail address will not be given or sold to any outside organization for its use in marketing or solicitation without your consent. Your e-mail address will be used for sending Location Alerts to you where you request them by e-mail. From time to time we may also send you a reminder that you have registered for Whereis Everyone, which may also contain additional information about your service, including existing features, new features, promotions and other information.

Restrictions on use and System Limitations

- 14.24 Whilst the time that a Location Alert is sent can be set to the nearest minute, Telstra cannot guarantee that the alarm will always be sent exactly at that time. Messages may be delayed by a few seconds or even a few minutes if Telstra systems are heavily loaded.
- 14.25 Whilst Telstra pre-paid customers will be able to request GPS accuracy for locating their own handset, they will be unable to request GPS accuracy when attempting to locate other people. Telstra post-paid customers will be able to request GPS accuracy for themselves and for other people.
- 14.26 You must not use or rely on Whereis Everyone in emergency situations.
- 14.27 Whereis Everyone is not a substitute for proper adult supervision of children or other vulnerable people such as sick or elderly people.
- 14.28 You should not accept an invitation from someone unless you know the person and feel comfortable with them knowing your location.
- 14.29 You must adopt appropriate measures to ensure the security of your handset. If your handset is lost, stolen or misplaced (even for a short period of time) there is a risk that a person may accept an invitation to share your location with them on your behalf without your knowledge. Accordingly, we recommend that you regularly check who your designated friends are. You must also notify our Customer Service Centre immediately if your handset is lost, stolen or misplaced.
